HealthPREP at Emory
An 8-week residential program facilitated by Emory School of Medicine & the James T. Laney School of Graduate Studies at Emory University for undergraduate and graduate scholars from disadvantaged backgrounds who are interested in health-related graduate and professional schools to enhance skills for competitive admissions.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW
Throughout the summer, students will receive comprehensive Graduate Record Examinations (GRE) & Medical College Admission Test (MCAT) preparation, opportunities to research, interact with health care providers during weekly seminars, and service learning projects. The seminars are designed to enhance students’ strengths and provide preparation for the health professions school admissions process. Seminar topics include:

- Writing personal statements
- Effective time management
- Academic preparation
- Simulation Labs
- Mock interviews

HealthPREP@Emory is tuition-free. Housing and program materials are provided by Emory University School of Medicine. Participants will receive a $1,000 stipend to subsidize the cost of meals, transportation and other living expenses.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS
- Completed Application
- Official Transcripts from all colleges attended
- Two letters of recommendation
- (at least 1 from a college professor)
- Personal Statement
